UNION: Questions from the Wife Panel

- If you have an argument, and you choose to sleep in another room, how do you think that impacts your wife's sense of security, respect, and desire to make you happy?
- Non-verbal communication is understated in most men. How do you think your wife interprets crossed arms, eyerolling, sighing, and distractions of many kinds (phone, golf, TV)? How does she interpret verbal cues like raising your voice or no response at all?
- How has the current series on setting aside pride, letting go of shame and betrayal, forgiving ourselves/spouses, and God's redemptive power to restore relationships helped your marriage and other relationships?
- How are you showing up as the spiritual leader in the home?
- What are you doing to move the needle forward in your relationship?
- What have you done to help your spouse in her healing process?
- What are you doing to actively work on the relationship now that you were not doing a few months ago?
- How do you intentionally speak life, encouragement, and biblical truth into your wife when she is discouraged?
- Do you need time to process emotions internally before talking, and how do you communicate that need to your wife without making her feel shut out?
- What practical boundaries or habits have you and your wife set up to protect your marriage from worldly temptations?
- How do you protect the private details of your marriage, conflict, and intimacy from being shared with outsiders, including close friends or family?
- How do you lead graciously, transparently, and humbly, yet bring up tough issues that she needs to change so the two of you are united as one as God intended (Genesis 2)?
- How do you manage life during times when your wife or family have extended times of criticism or lack of gratitude for your contributions?
